SEASON'S GREETINGS
THAT YOUR CHRISTMAS
BE MERRY
AND THAT THE YEAR 1960
BE YOUR HAPPIEST

DOROTHY HUNT
YOUR EDITOR A.P.P. AGENT

CHRISTMAS IS the celebration of the birth of a young man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman.

He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until he was thirty, and then for three years he was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office. He never owned a home. He never had a family. He never went to a college. He never put his foot inside a big city. He never travelled 200 miles from the place where he was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

While he was still a young man the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. He was turned over to his enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed to a cross between two thieves. While he was dying, his executioners gambled for the only piece of property he had on earth, and that was his coat.

When he was dead he was laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen centuries have passed, and today he is the central figure of the human race and the leader of the column of progress.

It is far within the mark to say that all the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever sailed, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as has that one SOLITARY LIFE

Congratulations go out to Bill Reid who celebrated his 70th birthday this week.

Irene and John Wood and Duncan Code of Calgary were out for the Legion Party.

Pattie Payne has been a patient in the Drumheller hospital a few days this week.

Pete Johnson, we are sorry to say, is a patient in Three Hills Hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Winner of the turkey raffled by Pope Lease W.I. was John Reid ticket No. 1551.

Lions annual New Years Eve Dance will be held Thursday Dec. 31 in the Scout Hall.

B.C. holly record crop

British Columbia holly, considered the world's finest, has resulted in a record crop this year and will be available to almost every Canadian housewife this Christmas.

The CP, which moved 25 temperature-controlled express cars last year to the eastern Canadian market, expect this year's crop will be even greater than the 100,000 pounds moved last year.

The fruit with the bright red berries and shiny green leaves has blossomed into big industry.

An area of 1,000 square miles around the cities of Vancouver and Victoria in British Columbia is one of the few spots on the continent where the soil and climate are suited to this unusual tree.

"The holly industry is increasing rapidly and British Columbia could eventually become the major source for the world's supply of commercial holly," said Peter Lakes of Vancouver. His plantation output is about one-third of the entire 50-member B.C. Holly Growers' Co-operative Association.

He said science, combined with grading and packaging standards, are producing a uniform product and as holly farms expand, the industry may extend its export into the United States, where little holly can be grown successfully.

British Columbia peat, like holly, considered among the best harvested, is now playing a part in the successful marketing of the plant that graces most homes during the festive season.

Holly wreaths, once based with peat in a crude design, are now uniform, thanks to peat moss sticks, cut from long slabs of peat with specially designed band saws. The raw end of the holly is stuck into the peat, which prolongs the life of the holly, because of the high moisture retention qualities of peat.

Vast holly farms are springing up in the Vancouver area, and within 10 years, the period it takes to develop the holly trees, a giant new industry is predicted.

Fullmer scores unanimous win

Champion Gene Fullmer scored a unanimous 15-round decision over Spider Webb Dec. 4 in a middleweight championship fight to retain his NBA boxing crown. A record of 7100 watched the bout at Logan, Utah.

Webb made the champion appear awkward at times but Fullmer made up for his awkwardness with solid right hand belts to the body and also blocked many of the challenger's best shots.

The three officials, all from Utah, had Fullmer far out in front at the finish. Referee Ken Shulsen scored it 147-141. Judge Boyd Mattison had it 150-132 and Judge Del Markham scored it 148-136.

Despite the battering through 15 rounds, neither fighter appeared badly marked at the end. Webb was tiring badly in the 15th round. Neither fighter was knocked down during the bout.

Culture, like custard, curdles when it's overdone.

FREEDOM TO ABSTAIN

Christmas is generally a season of happiness. The joy of the angels, shepherds and wise men finds an echo in our hearts.

For some, the Christmas season is one of fear, and sometimes heartbreak. Here is a young couple I know. His job brings him into contact with a lot of drinking. At Christmas time, many of those he served in his public position, offered him drinks in what they felt was the spirit of kindness and courtesy. He began to accept. We draw a curtain over what followed. Suffice it to say, that Christmas became a nightmare to the young wife and the aftermath, a disgust and disappointment to the young man. And the weaknesses developed at Christmas, tended to persist throughout the months that followed. The happy marriage was heading for dangerous rocks. The young couple were alarmed. So were the relatives, some of whom were earnestly praying. One summer day the young couple bowed before God. In the name of Jesus Christ they sought forgiveness and help for the days ahead. Through faith in Christ, they found it. Life has been different since that day. Now they are interested in helping others to know the Saviour they have found.

At Christmas time some of the old friends endeavour to induce the young man back to the old ways. It isn't fair. But the Scriptures, speaking of many sins in the first chapter of Romans, concludes with a comment on those who "not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them."

This is a free country. Under our laws men and women can drink liquor, even to drunkenness, within certain restrictions of place and behaviour. God says of drunkenness, as of the other works of the flesh, (Galatians 5:21), "They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." But while the law of the land permits drinking, it also allows a man to abstain from drinking. While churches generally are no longer outspoken against drinking, yet no church says that it is a sin to abstain. It's a free country for the non-drinker, too. Let the people who drink this Christmas respect the rights of others not to drink. Let us remember the words of the prophet, Habakkuk, (2:15), "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, and maketh him drunken also." If you wish to abstain, you can find the power to do so through Jesus Christ our Saviour.

Driving today's car is practically effortless. This leaves the mind free to figure out how to make the easy payments.

Gifts for the family

GRANDMOTHER—

Make her a pillbox to carry in her purse. Use a small tin box like the kind aspirin comes in—paint it a bright color and decorate lid by gluing on sequins or beads.

MOTHER—

Make her a paperweight by painting a small flowerpot. Fill it with small rocks or stones and place a sprig of holly or other greens in or around it.

FATHER—

Make him a tie-holder. Take a strip of white cardboard 15" long and 3" high and cut three slits 1 1/2" long on the cardboard. Lock the end slits together and tape firmly in place. Bend back the corners of the centre slit to make your holder resemble a dress collar. Place a gay holiday bow tie around this paper collar, or make a tie from a ribbon.

SISTER—

Make her a set of jewelry from two pipe cleaners and two or more matching buttons, the kind with shanks. For the bracelet, slip the pipe cleaner through one or more button shanks. Turn the pipe cleaner ends under, and curve bracelet to fit the arm. Make the matching ring the same way and then wind the long ends of the pipe cleaner around your finger a couple of times to make the ring fit.

BROTHER— Make bookends for him. Find two smooth clean bricks and give them a coat of enamel paint. When thoroughly dry, decorate with Christmas seals, or use gummed tape to make his initials or nickname on the sides.

BABY—

Make a cradle toy to dangle across the crib or carriage. Cut six or seven holiday pictures in different sizes from magazines and cards. Mount them on cardboard. Punch a hole near the top of each cut-out. Measure a length of ribbon or heavy cord long enough to tie from side to side on the baby's crib. Then string the cut-outs on ribbon.

Mr. Garskie and his gold samples.

Prospector sells rich gold mine

The stocky, balding man tipped an evaporated milk can.

Out on the desk tumbled half-a-dozen ore samples and a pair of yellow metal "buttons".

The buttons were pure metal, the samples laced heavily with the metal that has drawn men to the north from the ends of the earth—gold.

"I guess I don't have to work any more," Louis Garskie said with a small grin.

Since 1933, Louis Garskie, a Saskatchewan homesteader's son, has been roving the barren rock of the North West Territories, seeking, and finding gold.

Twelve years ago he made the strike that yielded the samples he carries around in an evaporated milk can container.

Three months ago, he sold his holdings outright, for "enough", as he laconically put it. A few weeks ago, he returned, as he has for a dozen winters, to Grande Prairie.

New owner of the rich property is Prestige Lake Mines Limited. Claim is 34 miles northeast of Yellowknife.

Louis, who has worked his mine single-handed since he found it, will stay as a director of the company and as a sort of technical adviser.

Born in North Dakota, Louis came to Canada as a youngster when his parents moved to Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, and picked out a homestead there.

Old enough to strike out on his own, he left Maple Creek with a friend in 1926 and came to the Peace River country.

"Me and my partner, we thought we'd take out a homestead in the Pouce Coupe country," he explained. "But when we got to Dunvegan that spring (they'd come via Peace River town), the ferry was out, and we could not cross."

At Dunvegan, Louis struck up an acquaintance with a pair of trappers working the country along the Peace River valley.

"They'd had a real good winter," says Louis, "and so, I bought their trapline. That's how I got into trapping."

"A little placer mining" in creeks along the Peace yielded some extra cash for Louis Garskie during his six years of trapping, but then he didn't think of mining or prospecting as a life. Gold-panning meant a few dollars extra, and nothing more.

In the summers, Louis worked with Harry Weaver of Peace River freighting goods into the Hudson Hope country, west of Fort St. John.

This was a thriving business until the NAR finally reached Dawson Creek in the early 1930's, and drove the small haulers out of business.

Just about that time, the famed Gilbert Labine struck rich pitchblende deposits in the Great Bear Lake district.

Among the many who cocked a fascinated eye at this new development in the north were Harry Weaver and Louis Garskie.

The freighting business had gone steadily downhill.

Farm produce, as a result of the depression, was selling at next to nothing.

"So," said Louis, with a reminiscent smile, "we loaded Harry's river boat full of eggs and potatoes and headed north."

Eggs were selling for six cents a dozen in the Peace, potatoes were being given away if they couldn't be sold.

"It looked like we could sell them at a pretty good price in the north," said Louis. He was right. The eggs sold for $1.50 a dozen, the potatoes for a good price too.

Things were "tough" in the Peace at the time, so Louis did the logical thing. He stayed in the north.

For seven years, he worked for Dominion Explorers, doing prospecting and assessment work. Most of this was one of the islands of Great Bear Lake, and in the area bordering on the famed Labine strike.

That's how he got his first taste of prospecting as a way of life.

He liked it. A single man, he had no ties remaining to the south, and so he went ahead as a prospector. After leaving Dominion Explorers, he signed on with Consolidated Mining and Smelting for six years.

"I did pretty well for them," Louis grinned. "I found a really good gold discovery in northern Saskatchewan, north of Lac La Ronge. They were happy about that one."

Six years with the big company passed swiftly for Louis. Roaming the rocky northland, he realized wasn't everybody's cup of tea, but it was his. He liked the challenge of prospecting, and the gamble involved in it.

"I guess it was in 1947 that I started prospecting on my own," he recalled.

"And I found my mine that first year."

How did that happen? He'd read closely through federal government geological survey pamphlets. They hinted that there might be gold in the area northeast of Yellowknife.

"Sure enough, there was," Louis smiled.

Some of it was right on the surface, and one of those original samples is one of Louis' proudest possessions.

It's a two-pound chunk of brownish rock, partly crystallized, with a scratched smear of gold on the top of it and showings of pure gold shot through.

"Those scratches are glacial striations," said Louis. "That's an old, old piece of gold."

The area in which Louis found his mine had been prospected before.

"It was staked three times before I got to it," says Louis. "Nobody found any gold there before though. The last man to stake it even had his cabin over the place where I found a rich vein."

"The luck of the game" was how Louis described his find. Others had missed; he had found it: It was as simple as that.

Probing farther and farther afield from his first discovery, he located rich traces on other parts of his property. Among them was a sample that assayed $32,000 to the ton.

"Pretty rich," Louis allows.

Then there is the shaft known as "the jewelry shop."

Rich showings of gold trace a handsome network along the walls of the shaft. "It looks like a jewelry store in places," says Louis.

Working his discovery single-handed was no easy chore.

Louis Garskie picked the richest showings, ground the ore fine and panned it, much as placer miners work their findings in streams.

Usually he'd head north from Grande Prairie in the early spring, in March, and stay working the claim until early October. Then he'd load his milled gold into beer bottles and haul it south again, in his battered green truck.

A beer bottle, with its normal contents in it, holds 12 fluid ounces. Loaded with gold, it holds about 75 ounces of the pure metal—or about $2,600 worth.

Over the dozen years during which Louis worked his claim single handed, he brought out 19 beer bottles full of gold, plus one whisky bottle. The latter held some 150 ounces—over $5,000 worth.

The whisky bottle—which contained Old Parr Scotch—gave its name to one of the first, and richer veins found by Mr. Garskie. It also provided a name for a small lake to the west of the Garskie property.

"I just didn't know what to name that vein," Louis said. "Then I thought of this bottle of Scotch a friend had given me."

Now on 10 months "holidays", Louis will spend his winter in Grande Prairie quietly, as he has done for the past dozen years.

"We'll go up there and sink that shaft next spring," he said. "Then we'll see what happens."

How much did his claim sell for?

"Well . . . let's just say I won't have to work again," he smiled.

Lady Lightkeepers Maintain Lonely Vigil

For many years two of Nova Scotia's most important shipping lanes have been watched over by women: Mrs. Eliza Campbell (above) who has tended the light on lonely Scatari Island off Cape Breton Island since the death of her husband in 1942, while some 200 miles away on the province's south shore, Mrs. Effie Wilkie acts as caretaker for the beacon at LaHave.

Many ships came to grief off Scatari's jagged shore before the first light was erected in 1871. Some 75 vessels are numbered among its victims. The devotion of the two lady lightkeepers of the Maritimes serves to keep thousands of ships each year which rely on their beacon safely on course. National Film Board of Canada Photos by Bob Brooks.

Days of lightkeepers are numbered. Department of Transport has rendered over half of the 3000 lights in Canada automatic. Last stand is the foghorn: machine can't tell when it's foggy. Mrs. Wilkie hand-pumps foghorn above.

Mrs. Wilkie buys her groceries from the "store on wheels" which calls regularly. Her light, which she has tended for over 15 years, marks the channel for ships coming from the Atlantic into the LaHave River.

Off-season brooding will be commonplace

With year 'round hatching, insulated buildings for the layers, Canadian egg production is coming closer to an even pattern throughout the 12 months. This, of course, is what the retailers need to properly merchandize the product.

It is not, however, coming overnight. This was made evident by G. R. Wilson, Chief of Poultry Production, Ottawa, in his address to the Canadian Hatchery Federation at Winnipeg in September this year.

Mr. Wilson showed that in 1958 86.5 percent of the annual hatch of egg production stock was in the first half of the year, which leaves 13½ percent for the remaining six months. The trend, though, is definitely for the larger flock owners to brood more than once a year, and it is equally true that as these flocks get larger the smaller flocks just vanish.

Therefore, all year brooding will undoubtedly accelerate during the next few years.

Is this good . . . or bad? We think it is to the advantage of the industry as a whole. It will mean greater numbers of higher quality eggs on the market, if quality is to be judged by improved farm management, less time elapse in reaching the grading station, the retailer and the ultimate consumer.

The little producer with 50 or a hundred or so hens seldom was an efficient producer because the returns from his enterprise were never an important factor in his farming operations. The few exceptions to this are the people living in or adjacent to a town who cater to a private trade. Such people usually command top price for a really fresh egg. In our opinion they are here to stay but they will never supply but a very small part of the market. In the main, they are older people subsidizing a pension by doing something they find pleasant and interesting. The industry can benefit from them for a long time to come.

It is quite evident, though, that the major part of egg production will be done on large speciality poultry plants and on farms where egg production assumes a major role. We see quite plainly that most of those in the western prairie provinces who will continue with egg production will be people who are willing to invest quite an amount in good buildings, good stock, good feed. They will come to an arrangement — call it integration if you want to — with a retailer, a wholesaler or a co-op, to take their steady production 12 months in the year. They will seek advice from these outlets as to the continuing quality of their product and they will strive in every way possible to produce an egg that the public is anxious for. That will call for brooding more than once each year. We are convinced that's the way the industry is headed. — Canada Poultryman.

EGG PRODUCTION

The estimated production of eggs in Canada during August was 33.6 million dozen as compared to 33.7 million for the same month last year. In the January-August period 312 million dozen were produced as compared with 298 million in the same period of 1958.

A case for morality

(The Sun, Swift Current, Sask.)

Sober, safe, Christian driving, particularly during the Christmas and New Year holiday season—which is just over the calendar horizon—is being promoted by the United Church of Canada again this year. Sparked by the United church's board of evangelism and social service, the campaign will receive strong support from United church pulpits. It should also receive support from citizens in all walks of life and of every religious denomination.

"Keep the thought of Christ in Christmas" is the theme of the campaign, which will emphasize the moral responsibility of Christians to keep the highways safe from accidents. Courtesy, Christian consideration for others, obedience to traffic laws, and personal morality are being stressed in the program.

Moderator of the United Church, the Right Rev. Angus J. McQueen, in a campaign statement said this: "There is an old adage 'noblesse oblige'—nobility obligates. This can be put in a simpler form—every right has a corresponding duty, and every privilege a corresponding responsibility. Perhaps nowhere is this to be seen more clearly than in our modern machine-age. We are a nation on wheels, and the safety of each person depends upon the trustworthiness of others.

"Most of us in Canada have a religious faith. This means that we have recognized moral principles, and that we are expected to apply our religion in everyday, practical affairs. To be more specific, it means that we shouldn't leave our religion in church on Sunday, or at home on top of the Bible when we go out for a drive. If it is a vital religion, it is for all the time and for everywhere.

"The Christian should drive carefully and soberly and with due regard for the safety of himself and others, because all life is sacred. This is one practical way in which he can love his neighbor as himself. The appeal is much more than to self-concern, as in the popular says: 'The life you save may be your own,' or 'Leave your blood at the Red Cross and not on the highway.' We are to respect the lives and welfare of others, all of whom are God's children like ourselves.

"Furthermore, the Christian should obey Christ's law of love. This is quite different from liking everybody or getting sentimental over people in general. It implies certain practical virtues—courtesy, patience, kindness, thoughtfulness of others, and good temper. These are the opposite of rudeness, irritation, showing off, selfishness and anger. The one type of behavior makes for safety and well-being; the other type makes for danger and death.

"Of course a good Christian is also a good citizen. He does not defy the laws, or despise them as nuisances or traps, but realizes that they are necessary supports for a well-ordered society; that they are not to restrict him, but in the long run to give him and his fellowmen greater freedom and security.

"The problem of highway safety is not a problem of horsepower or road construction so much as it is a problem of personal morality and practical religion. It is, in other words, a fair test of character and our faith."

Alpha is tops

(The Bulletin, Brooks, Alta.)

The co-operative organization known as the Central Alberta Dairy Pool took top butter honors at the Toronto Royal. One of our local residents who was at the fair said the Dairy Pool's display was outstanding, and to climax its attraction, officials placed a banner at the exhibit stating: "Best butter in the show."

Best butter at the Toronto Royal is akin to saying the best butter in Canada! In the face of terrific competition from the whole nation, it's a proud achievement indeed, and it's a real feather in our cap here in Alberta—an acknowledged beef country—to have the nation's butter championship!

At this point we would like to mention that there is a Dairy Pool plant right in this town which makes butter surely as appetizing as the best butter at the Royal. The "Alpha" brand is known on butter, ice cream, milk and honey plus other brand names for milk powders, eggs and other produce.

We would like to see food stores in this area promote and push Alpha products for all they're worth. Using butter as a gauge, consumers would be getting not only the best products in Canada, but would be supporting a valuable home industry as well.

Keep an eye on the child

Most serious accidents happen to the small child who is playing alone. The next highest number of casualties is found among the small fry who are playing together, with no supervision by older children or adults. Preschoolers should never be allowed to play alone or with others of the same age, unless there is a responsible older child or a grown-up to prevent running into the street or getting into other dangers.

Good grooming

The well-groomed girl takes care to have bright well-brushed teeth, well-cared-for hands and a clean skin, not only as an aid to beauty but also for good health. Brushing the teeth after eating will help to prevent dental caries. Keeping fingernails clean will help to remove bacteria. Short round fingernails are safer than very long ones, especially for those who handle an infant.

Beware the fury of a patient man.

Good "brush off" keeps ladies well groomed

It's just possible that the girl who wins the "best-groomed" award this season, in office, classroom, or club meeting, will be the one who owns—and uses—the most brushes.

Take hair styles, for instance. The new, super-smooth, straight-haired look demands for its appeal on lustre and texture—the result of absolute cleanliness and continual brushing. Not only is the usual 100-strokes-a-night routine all-important, but quick touch-ups are also needed throughout the day. For these a purse-size hairbrush is a must, and little brushes with nylon filaments are both efficient and easy to keep fresh and clean. The filament also comes in a wide choice of brush styles with soft or sturdy bristles, depending on whether you want gentle action or real stimulation.

The most popular brush in Canada is a spiral shaped ladies' hair brush with nylon bristles and a handle of acrylic resin. For instance, over 125,000 brushes of this type were sold in a one-month period recently by one brush company.

Canadian women have also selected the transparent handle as their favorite. Fitting in with all color schemes, this clear sparkling type of handle also adds a jewel touch which all women adore.

To present a lovely face to the world, a generous selection of brushes is required. For all-over cleanliness and skin beauty there are complexion, nail hand and body brushes.

In making up, brushes are used to apply nail polish, lipstick and mascara, and a soft powder brush serves to dust off excess face powder. To keep eyebrows neatly in line, there is now a tiny brush and comb combination that does double duty in whisking off caked mascara. As a last-minute precaution, a clothes brush is a "must" for removing untidy-looking hairs and powder specks.

Because so many of these brushes must be immaculately clean to do their best, the fastidious woman today looks for styles made with sparkling, easy-to-clean filaments. From miniature mascara brush to long-handled bath brush, the nylon bristles offer the degree of fineness, stiffness, or softness required, and provide the resilience and long lasting qualities that make these brushes both practical and economical.

Quilted housing

Stow your house in an aircraft, unload it in the wilderness, and have it up again—complete with a cosy fire in the stove—just half an hour after arrival. That's pioneering the modern way!

With Canadians flying further and further afield, often to Arctic regions, they're looking for living accommodation that will travel with them. It has to be light because air transport is expensive. It has to be sturdy and warm. Moreover, it must be easy to erect.

An Ottawa firm, Parcoll Products Limited, has come up with something which seems to fill the bill. A ingenious cross between a tent and a fully-insulated house, it promises to bring new comfort to hunters, explorers, construction workers and others who need a warm shelter away from civilization.

This approach to airborne housing is built in sections, making use of some of the newer construction materials. The frame is of aluminum tubing which can be fitted together without so much as a screwdriver. Over this are buckled wall-ceiling sections consisting of two layers of "Terylene" taffeta with fibreglass insulation sandwiched between them. The "Terylene" has been weather-proofed with a coating of polyurethane, a new process developed by Duplan of Canada Limited. The windows are of unbreakable plastic. When it's time to pick up the house and move, the whole thing packs into the insulated plywood boxes which form the floor.

The first of these super-tents were custom built for Arctic expeditions, where they are now keeping technical survey men snug in below-zero temperatures. However, their designer also foresees a future for them much closer to home.

Hunting clubs, for instance, have found that game animals tend to avoid established camps. Housing units like this can be set up in a different spot each year. Outdoorsmen in construction, surveying and geology need living accommodation they can take with them.

We are well served with travelling camp stoves, folding tables and chairs, portable refrigerators and travel alarm clocks. Now, it seems, we're to have travelling houses! —CIL Oval.

With Best Wishes for the Holiday Season

We feel that the best part of Christmas is in the gift of good wishes received and good wishes extended; so, sincerely we say to all our friends—May this day be filled with happiness and good cheer...

Merry Christmas!

FESTIVE SEASON RECIPES

These fondant candies may be dipped in melted semi-sweet chocolate, or rolled in chopped nuts, or used to stuff pitted dates. Roll potato-shaped candies in cinnamon or cocoa; apple- or strawberry-shaped candies in sugar tinted red. Place walnut or pecan halves on opposite sides of a few fondant balls and press together.

POTATO FONDANT

1 baked medium potato
1 tbsps. butter
1/2 tsp. almond flavoring
2 1/4 cups icing sugar (approx.)
Remove inside of baked potato, mash well, add butter and beat until fluffy. Stir in flavoring then add icing sugar, a little at a time, working in thoroughly using your fingers. Continue adding sugar until fondant is stiff enough to knead on a board. Form fondant into small balls and other shapes.

For larger quantities than the 3 cups of eggnog this recipe will make, simply increase ingredients proportionately. If foamy eggnog is preferred, reserve half the egg whites; just before serving time, beat these egg whites until stiff and fold into eggnog mixture.

EGGNOG

3 eggs
1 tbsps. sugar
few grains salt
2 cups milk
vanilla or sherry to taste
Nutmeg
Beat eggs slightly. Blend in sugar and salt. Gradually stir in milk and vanilla or sherry then strain, pour into glasses and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg.

Use plain butter icing on Christmas cake, or on top of the almond paste when this is used.

BUTTER ICING

1/2 cup butter
few grains salt
1 tsp. vanilla
3 cups icing sugar
3 to 4 tbsps. milk or cream
Cream together the butter, salt and vanilla. Stir in 1 cup icing sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add remaining sugar and milk alternately. Beat until very smooth and fluffy.

This makes enough to ice top and sides of 8" or 9" square cake.)

Sauces for your Christmas pudding

If ever a dessert had wonderful flavor and richness, it's Christmas Plum Pudding! So spicy, so sweet, so saturated with fragrance . . . mmmm . . . just thinking about it makes you want some!

Whenever you see plum pudding on the table there is a sauce to go with it. Some like to serve a tart fruit sauce, such as lemon-flavored foamy sauce. Others like a golden maple sauce, but probably more popular than either of these is a buttery-smooth, hot brown sugar sauce made the old-fashioned way, with plenty of butter and a dash of vinegar included for good flavor.

The sauce that is best of all with plum pudding, in the opinion of many Canadian families, is hard sauce. It may be made with either brown sugar of icing sugar and it is very easy to prepare because no cooking is required.

APPLE BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE

This apple butterscotch sauce is a Consumer Section adaptation of brown sauce. It is good with all kinds of hot puddings. The recipe makes about 1 1/2 cups.

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
3 tbsps. cornstarch pinch of salt
1 cup apple juice
1 cup water
Melt butter. Blend in sugar, cornstarch and salt. Cook until mixture is slightly browned. Add apple juice and water and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Continue to cook 2 to 3 minutes. Serve hot.

HARD SAUCE

Hard sauce made this way will be almost white since icing sugar is used. It can very easily be tinted in Christmas colors. Hard sauce put through a cake decorator or cookie press, making attractive rosettes or little hard Here's a tart that's a treat anytime! The recipe makes sufficient filling for 24 small tarts (cut rounds of pastry 3 inches in diameter).

MAPLE TARTS

1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup cornstarch OR
6 tbsps. flour
1 1/2 cups maple syrup
1/2 cup hot water
24 baked, small tart shells
Melt butter and blend in cornstarch OR flour over low heat. Remove from heat and stir in syrup and water. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly until thick then continue cooking for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Let cool at least 15 minutes before spooning into tart shells. If desired, garnish with whipped cream or chopped nuts.

Tourtières are traditional as part of the feast served in French-Canadian homes after midnight mass on Christmas Eve. These pork pies are so good, and so handy to have on hand during the festive season, that the Consumer Section thought you would like to share their recipe.

Onion, salt and pepper are the only seasonings given in this recipe, the good flavor of the pork with the pastry being the important thing. In some homes, a little cinnamon or cloves might be added to the meat mixture and, also, a few whole allspice are simmered sometimes with the pork then removed. In many French-Canadian homes a grated raw or mashed cooked potato or two is included in the pie.

Tourtières may be made up ahead of time and frozen for later baking.

TOURTIÈRES (Pork Pies)

(3 9-inch pies)
3 pounds minced lean pork
3/4 cup boiling water
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 1/2 tbsps. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
pastry for 3 double-crust pies

Simmer pork in water 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients and simmer until meat is white, about 10 minutes. Cool and skim off fat.

Line 3 pie pans with pastry, fill with meat mixture and cover with top crust. Bake in a very hot oven (425 deg. F.) until browned, about 30 minutes.

Turkey cradle for the Yuletide bird

A simple device for lifting roasted turkey from pan to platter may be easily fashioned from a few lengths of clean string. Before roasting the turkey measure its circumference both around the sides and lengthwise tail to neck. Cut five or six lengths of clean heavy string twice the circumference around the bird and 3 or 4 pieces two and a half times the length of the circumference from tail to neck. Mark the length and width of the turkey on a piece of paper. Lay the 5 or 6 shorter pieces of string flat on the paper spaced far enough apart to cover the length of the bird. Weave the longer pieces of string through these, tying them at each juncture with cross strings to form a net-like mesh the width of the turkey.

Moisten net with fat and place on the rack in the roasting pan which is to hold the turkey. Lay bird on it, roll group of strings on each side of pan in pieces of aluminum foil. When bird is cooked remove from oven, set pan on counter, take foil from strings. Gather strings up to form a cradle and lift turkey on to platter. Slip net from under bird, garnish and serve as usual.

sauce Christmas trees, will look pretty on the pudding.

1 cup icing sugar
1/2 cup butter
Sift icing sugar. Cream butter, add icing sugar gradually and stir until well blended. Chill well before serving.

To make Hard Sauce Snowman: Shape hard sauce into 2 balls, a large one for the body and smaller one for head. Use cloves for eyes and slivers of cherry for nose and mouth.

MAGNIFICENT SET—What may well turn out to be a record rack for Ontario in 1959, is this magnificent set of moose horns here being held by Dr. W. Singer, well known St. Pierre doctor and avid hunter. Dr. Singer bagged the big moose near Stark Lake, some 200 miles north of Kenora. In spite of the fact that Dr. Singer and his Indian guide were snowed in for four days, the big smile shows that the effort was well worth while. The rack has 18 points, measures 60 inches across and is very well matched.

"DISTORTED PUBLICITY"

I've been asking some young British immigrant friends what they think about all the adverse publicity Canada has been getting in their homeland. Their replies are highly indignant.

"It makes me boil," is a typical remark. "The opportunities here are terrific and very few of us have found it otherwise."

One young man who came to Canada five years ago, has parlayed his first job as a junior insurance company clerk, into a branch manager's position. He now has a new Canadian bride, owns his own bungalow and his own car. "I could never have done this well at home," he declares.

He has nothing but scorn for British state welfareism. "The lazy blokes can get by with very little effort and they have security," he explains. "But it is only because those who are willing to work are carrying them. Here, if you want to really work you can get ahead." Britishers who feel this way about Canada are especially ashamed of the London press reports warning prospective immigrants against bread-lines and unemployment in Canada.

"Ridiculous", one told me and offered an interesting theory as to the reasons for these exaggerations. He claims the Labour party's press is attacking Canada because this country is a free enterprise state and also because it has a Conservative government. It is trying to convince British workers that a Conservative vote will bring unemployment and bread-lines to England.

Whatever the reasons for the distorted stories about Canada, the facts disprove them. The British Information Service reveals that of 100,000 British immigrants to the Toronto area alone, only two have asked for assistance to return home.

Frank Lovell, alumni and news secretary of the University of Saskatchewan, has been assigned by the University to assist in its $2,500,000 Golden Jubilee Campaign for funds.

President J. W. T. Spinks announced that Mr. Lovell will become the campaign's associate campaign director and will be away from his office on the campus until the end of June.

Ian Bickle, assistant news secretary, has been appointed acting news secretary for the eight-month period.

Mr. Lovell is a University of Saskatchewan graduate, receiving the bachelor of commerce degree (B.Comm.) in 1949. He became executive secretary of the Memorial Union Building Fund in September of 1949 and secretary-manager of the U. of S. Alumni Association in 1950. Three years later he became alumni and news secretary of the university. In 1957, he was named secretary-treasurer of the University of Saskatchewan Foundation, and secretary of the Golden Jubilee committee.

Details of the Jubilee campaign with which he will be associated were announced some time ago. Objective is to raise $2.5 million. The university plans to spend $14 million over the next five years to expand and improve its facilities at Saskatoon, Regina and Emma Lake.

STILL COMPARATIVELY UNKNOWN

Cancer is still much of a mystery but there are some forms of this disease that can be cured with modern treatment. Time is the great factor and it is essential that the suspected condition should be diagnosed and treated in its earliest stages, when it is usually possible to control it. Any symptom, no matter if it appears minor, should be given medical attention.

Cranberries

"The presence of trace amounts of aminotriazole in some lots of the current crop of cranberries does not in itself constitute a danger to health," the Hon. J. Waldo Monteith said recently. "Whatever hazard may exist would appear to lie in repetition of this contamination resulting in consumption by individuals of repeated doses of the chemical over many years involving an enormous amount of contaminated cranberries. It is the concern of my Department to ensure that this does not take place."

The Minister of National Health and Welfare referred to reports from American Public Health authorities to the effect that cranberries grown in the states of Washington and Oregon had been found to be contaminated with aminotriazole. "Immediately upon receipt of these reports, our Food and Drug offices across the country were alerted to the situation and instructed to check all imported cranberries as well as domestic stocks. While this is a time-consuming process, a fair number of results have already been obtained. These show that there has been trace contamination of some cranberries now in Canada. The proportion however, is very small. Where supplies have been found to be contaminated, steps have been taken to keep them off the market. The owners involved have shown complete understanding and co-operation."

Mr. Monteith stated that the present situation stems from the misuse of aminotriazole. "This weed-killer, is registered by the Department of Agriculture for use in Canada but only after cranberry crops have been harvested. If it is employed in this way, no contamination of the berries will result. Trouble arises only when it is sprayed on the crop before harvesting. Obviously some producers have not followed the prescribed method of application."

"I am confident that the action being taken here and in the United States will focus attention on the proper use of aminotriazole and that the cranberry industries in both countries will co-operate in preventing a recurrence of the problem. As far as the present situation is concerned, I personally intend to have cranberries with my turkey at Christmas."

FALSE TEETH That Loosen

Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). LONG YEARS AGO both Mac and Mrs. Mac were very good to me.

In those days money came easily, with the result that nobody was prepared for the hungry thirties which really started in 1929, at which time living conditions and crops got a little leaner.

But to return to the period 1927—29, I well remember going into either of the Cafes for dinner. To the younger folk there used to be a cafe in between the Farmers Exchange and the Ideal Hardware, what is now a vacant lot. For dinner I would probably order a beef steak. My teeth, ambition and stomach were good in those days. Depending upon which cafe I entered, either "Fat" or Yip Sing would serve me a steak about an inch thick and a yard in diameter, potatoes, beans and carrots, followed by raisin pie which had a good inch of filling and was a good quarter of a pie in size. All the tea or coffee I could drink and the bill was .35c. On other occasions I would order a banana split—and what a split. Three big wads of ice cream on an oval dish, covered with this, that and the other until there was quite a big meal 25c please

Again, Oh! for the good old days. Those were the days when the large size candy bars were sold for six for a quarter and all day suckers six for a nickel. I had better stop talking about food or I will get the whole town hungry.

If we could only go back to those days to buy our food and return to the present days to eat it?

Yes. Many things were pretty cheap then, yet when I look at a 1914 Simpsons catalogue that I possess, I think I would rather go back to that time to make my purchases. Men's blue serge suits $16.50. Ladies hats around $2.50. Very chic (whatever that means—and what hats! The prices were just right but the styles!! No folks, this catalogue is neither for sale nor lending. I get too many laughs out of it. You ought to see the bathing costumes of that day. I remember wearing one to my horror of those styles.

National Health Week dates

Dates for National Health Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada, with the co-operation of departments of health and of education have been set to run from January 31 to February 6, 1960.

Health Week is aimed at raising standards of health and living through telling every family in Canada how to prevent illness and preserve health.

"Health is a matter of individual concern, and is also of national importance. The vital thing is to have everyone help himself," Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the League.

"This year, emphasis is being placed upon the formation of health committees in service clubs, women's groups, and other organizations. In this way, the democratic principles behind the voluntary organization is carried out," he said.

Dr. Bates pointed out that Canada has every possible advantage materially, for having a high standard of health. However, it is a lamentable fact that this country actually lags behind some other countries who do not have the same material advantages.

"Canada lags behind in infant mortality, and such beneficial public health measures as pasteurization of milk, fluoridation of water supplies, and immunization against communicable and infectious diseases are by no means universal."

"People still think in terms of being cured after they have fallen ill, rather than preventing costly and tragic illnesses in the first place," he said.

"This apathy on the part of the Canadian must be overcome. Through asking groups to form health committees, a driving force from within the public itself will help that same public to better health and consequently to better standards of living," he said.

Dr. Bates concluded by stating that the formation of health committees would be one of the most important and effective means of improving the health of Canadians that has evolved since the development of public health procedure.

UN responsible for new freedom in Egypt

For the first time Egyptian girls are going to dances without escorts.

The United Nations is responsible—specifically the U.N. emergency force which is charged with keeping the peace along the Egyptian-Israeli border.

Officials at UNEF's leave centre in Cairo were planning entertainment for those periods when the troops from seven nations get time off.

This was no easy problem in the conservative Moslem city.

The pyramids, the sphinx, camel rides and the Cairo museum are not exactly a soldier's idea of fun—especially after six months in the desert.

How about weekly dances?

Tony Bishara, Egyptian liaison officer at the leave centre, thought members of foreign communities in Cairo would be willing to come to such dances.

He visited stores offering invitations to Greek, Italian and Armenian salesgirls.

Egyptian girls saw the invitations and asked what they were about. Bishara told them about the UNEF dances.

Could Egyptian girls go too?

Sure, Bishara answered.

"They came in droves, you never saw such a turnout," says Bishara. "They were shy, often stuck together, but they came."

"Now we have dances twice a week."

Bishara, standing six feet, three inches and a judo expert, is one of the chaperones.

- 2 envelopes (2 tbsps.) unflavored gelatine
- 2 cups cranberry juice cocktail

Let ham stand at room temperature for 15 minutes. Blot any excess gelatine off. Sprinkle gelatine over $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of the cranberry juice. Heat the remaining $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups of cranberry juice to boiling. Remove from heat and stir in softened gelatine, until dissolved. Cool until mixture is syrupy, but not jelled. Place ham on a metal cookie rack over shallow baking pan or tray. Pour the cooled glaze over the ham making certain all parts are coated. Transfer ham to another cookie rack on tray and place in refrigerator until glaze is firm. Spoon the glaze that has dripped into other pan into saucepan and reheat until liquid, then cool again until syrupy. Repeat this process until ham is colored and shiny. If desired, before pouring glaze on ham, cut holly leaves or Christmas trees from slices of canned jelled cranberry sauce and place on top of ham. When glaze is firm cut-outs will keep shape under gelatin mixture. Makes about 30 servings. Reduce glaze to half recipe for 5 to 6 pound ham.

PRICES

The general wholesale price index eased downwards by 0.3 percent in October from September; preliminary calculations indicate a slight rise in November from the October level. The index of farm prices of agricultural products declined for the third consecutive month in October, reaching a seasonal low of 235.9, putting it below the figure of 236.2 a year earlier.

The Country Mouse and the City Mouse

Once upon a time a Country Mouse who had a friend in town invited him, for old acquaintance's sake, to pay him a visit in the country at winter holiday time.

Though plain and rough and somewhat frugal in his nature, the Country Mouse opened his heart and store in honor of an old friend. There was not a carefully stored-up morsel that he did not produce from his larder—peas and barley, cheese parings and nuts—to please the palate of his city-bred guest.

The Town Mouse, however, turned up his long nose at the rough country fare. "How is it, my friend," he exclaimed, "that you can endure the boredom of living like a toad in a hole? You can't really prefer these solitary rocks and woods to the excitement of the city. You are wasting your time out here in the wilderness. A mouse, you know, does not live forever, one must make the most of life while it lasts. So come with me and I'll show you life and the town."

In the end, the Country Mouse allowed himself to be persuaded, and the two friends set out together on their journey to town.

It was late in the evening when they crept stealthily into the city, and midnight before they reached the great house where the Town Mouse lived.

On the table of the splendid banquet room were the remains of a lavish Yuletide feast. It was now the turn of the Town Mouse to play host. He ran to and fro to supply all the guest's wants. He pressed dish upon dish and dainty upon dainty upon him as though he were waiting on a king. The Country Mouse, for his part, pretended to feel quite at home, and blessed the good fortune that had wrought such a change in his way of life.

But in the midst of his enjoyment, just as he was beginning to feel contempt for his frugal life in the country, the sound of barking and growling could be heard outside the door.

"What is that?" said the Country Mouse.

"Oh, that is only the master's dogs," replied the Town Mouse.

"Only!" replied the visitor in dismay. "I can't say that I like music with my dinner."

At that moment the door flew open and a party of revelers, together with two huge dogs, burst into the room. The affrighted mouse friends jumped from the table and concealed themselves in a far corner of the chamber. At length, when things seemed quiet, the Country Mouse stole out from his hiding place, and bidding his friend good-bye, whispered in his ear: "This fine way of living may do for those who like it. But give me my barley bread in peace and in security in preference to your dainty fare partaken with fear and trembling."

Moral: A crust eaten in peace is better than a banquet partaken in anxiety.

ACME

Pete Finstad has purchased a lot in the park next to Mike Roth and plans immediate construction of a home.

After working for Clarence Spooner for several years Oris Rogers has returned to his Ontario home. Jerry Hopcraft has taken his place with Clarence.

Bev. George of the Acme Garage staff has gone home to Wapella, Sask. for Christmas.

A large crowd was in attendance in the Acme Memorial Lodge Room Sunday evening for the Annual Christmas Program of St. John's Church. In the absence of a minister, Mr. Frank Emery presided, and Mrs. Hanslip, leader of the Church School, was in charge of the program which was most enjoyable. The evening began with a sumptuous pot luck supper followed by a short service at the beginning and end of the program.

The regular Thursday sale at the Acme Auction Market on Dec. 17th was well attended and well over a hundred cattle were sold at good prices with the top steer selling at 23.50 and the top heifer sold at 19.50. Humphrey Gratz was owner of the top heifer sold and of one of the top steers.

The C.P.R. train will not run on Friday Christmas Day but will make both the run to Wimborne and the run to Carbon on Monday.

GREETINGS and THANKYOU

Once again Christmas is almost here and the year 1959 is nearly over.

My family and I would like to thank everyone who has assisted us in the erection of our new home. Without your help the hopes we have of completing our home early next year would have to be forgotten.

Many thanks again to all of you and a Very Merry Christmas to all of our friends.
